

Read Me- Zed Nope Stock use.

By purchasing any stock artwork from Zed you are acquiring a non-exclusive Single User license, for personal or commercial projects. This is not an agreement of ownership. This license is non-transferable. By purchasing this stock art pack, you are granted a royalty-free license to use the included images in unlimited personal and commercial products, including print, digital, streaming, and advertisements for the product in which it is featured. You may not place these images in another stock art collection, or sell them individually, in another bundle, or in any other fashion such as as an NFT or other blockchain-related media.

You are allowed to crop, rotate, color, flip, reduce, enlarge, or otherwise modify these images as needed. The initials/signature of the Artist(if included in the original artwork) do not have to be visible in the final published work.

If you wish to use these images in merchandise where the art is prominent, they must be substantially edited or added to. (eg. if you use one to represent a character in a tabletop rpg podcast, you must customize the art in some way, add to it artistically, or otherwise distinguish it from the original if you wish to print it on a tshirt.)

The artist's name must appear in the product's credits. I suggest:

Some artwork provided by Zed Nope, and used with permission.

However, you may use any format you prefer. Identifying the specific artworks provided is not necessary. I greatly appreciate it if you publish on DTRPG, to include me in the 'Artist' section of the product info so that I can find it by searching, but only the credit in the actual document is required.
